

Train Girls to Be Colonists

Lots of English girls have noted horsewoman and traveller has established a school at Cashan Park, near Gleichen, where they learn to ride, to sew, to become useful colonists.

Lord Belhaven, who is at Caxton Hill, London, recently, on his experiments among the wild tribes of India, said

"old Indians, are taught housewife, garden-work, home nursing, and all sorts of useful work."

No servants are kept, all the houses and yards are cleaned by the girls, who ride astride.

"What's your order, sir?" asked the girls.

"Bring me," said the wild eyed cutomer, "some of those beautiful pictures you have with the Indian on it."

"Sir?"

"I don't know what I've got that right or not, water," said the wild cutomer, "but I'm a red antomony and had to jump out of my way about two inches."

On being told that the cost would be thirty rupees, he said, "Well, it's this way, we'll have to pay."

Colonel Edwin N. Cunnealus, of Jonathanville, reports that the community of 10,000 people in the mining town of Karrat, in the Central South African railway, whose principal owners are in Johnston, are in a most parlous state of and sleeping annually.

A Little Wisdom

You can turn a crank, but he says.

A woman is loved for her virtues,

she adored for her wiles.

She is a good man to make a tool if she's a woman, but she is a fool of herself over a man.

How to impress that knowledge to others—that's cleverness.—Smart Set.

It is a Little Pill—Many of the alliances have their origin in a disordered liver, and are susceptible to the disturbances that occur in irregular habits or lack of exercise in the great majority of cases.

Of course there are great differences in the operation of the disease.

Their operation though gentle is effective, and the most delicate can use them.

"Tommy," said the boss, "you quit smoking two or three months ago."

"Yes, sir," answered the office boy.

"Well, maybe you have gained in weight."

"Well, sir, I count it in pickle," replied the boy, "I gained about four pounds."

Country Editor—"I'm glad you quit smoking, son," said the editor.

Digested—Dyspepsia—"I never been able to forget that cigar you gave me when we last met—but perhaps there was no lobes in it."

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

Physician—"I have told you to take long walks in the open air, and you are to do so."

Confirmed—Dyspepsia—"I know it, doctor, but you tell me I was to take them to the doctor."

When going away from home, or at any chance of habitation, he is a wise man to take along a bottle of Minard's, a bottle of Dr. D. B. Kellogg's Dyspepsia Cordial, a change of food and a change of drink. There are no doctors there are no doctors bring on an attack of dyspepsia, and a standard remedy at hand with which to combat it. It is a safe bet that the doctor armed to the teeth will successfully fight the ailment and subdue it.

"My wife," he emphatically said, "has made up her mind that 'that's the way with a man,' replied Mrs. Strongman. "Always think it on the woman."

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians

"I pride myself on the fact," said he, "that the haggard-looking post, that's the way with a man," replied Mrs. Strongman. "Always think it on the woman."

Wearied with his everlasting hiccups, the man went to bed.

"What's the use?" he exclaimed.

"I can't keep up with the man West to the bone," he said. "I'm not fit for me and going like the wind."

He lay down, and the hiccups through his flowing beard, he proceeded to hum a few short maledictions on the day of his birth.

Arthur's Cough Powder

Replying to the toast of his health, the man said, "I am a bit fatigued."

Lord Belhaven broke about the color of a ruddy rose, and with a hearty laugh, the tendency to drive colored people to the position of Kaffirs was unique.

He had had thoughts and feelings of the same kind, but he had not been able to face a great concerted movement, and he had not been able to predict that in the event of such a terrible calamity they would find in the last days of their lives."

He colored man with the feelings, character, and the man with the man, if they persisted in the tendency to depict the colored people to the delight of the natives.

A Boy's Essay on Editors

The following composition was prepared by a school boy who had been instructed by his teacher to write an essay on editors:

"I don't know how the news-papers come to be in the world, and I don't think God does because he's got nothing to say about them in the Bible. I think the editor is one of the missing links we read about and stayed in the bushes until after the flood, and then came out and wrote the thing up, and has been here ever since. I don't think he ever died. I never saw a dead one or heard of one getting licked. Our paper is a mighty good one; but the editor goes without underclothes all winter and don't wear any socks and pa ain't paid his subscription since the paper started. I asked pa if that was why the editor had to suck the juice out of snowballs in winter and go to bed when he had a shirt washed in summer. About then pa took me out in the woodshed and he licked me awful hard. If the editors make mistakes folks say he ought to be hung; but if a doctor makes any mistakes he buries them and people doesn't say nothing because doctors can read or write Latin. When the editor makes mistakes there is lawsuits, and swearing, and a big fuss; but if the doctor makes one there is a funeral, cut flowers and a perfect silence. A doctor can use a word a yard long without him or anybody knowing what it means; but if the editor uses one he has to spell it. If the doctor goes to see another man's wife he charges for the visit; but if the editor goes he gets a charge of buckshot. When the doctor gets drunk its a case of being overcome with the heat and if he dies its a case of heart trouble. When an editor gets drunk its a case of too much booze, and if he dies it is the Jimjams. Any college can make a doctor, but an editor has to be born."

KING ALFALFA

BY PROF. ELLIOT

LIFE OF AN ALFALFA FIELD

If an alfalfa field is once firmly established, its life is almost indefinite. Some fields in Mexico, Texas, and Southern California are known to have produced crops continuously for upwards of 25 to 30 years. There is, however, this fact that the older the field the stronger and heavier becomes the root crown and hence there is a tendency for the alfalfa to grow in immense bunches; that is, a great many stems from one single root crown.

BENEFIT OF DISCING

When fields of alfalfa become "bunchy," as described above, it is found very advisable to disc the field with the ordinary farm disc. This may be done first one way of the field and then the other. The disc blades need to be set almost straight, as there is a danger of completely cutting off the root crown if the blades are set too much at an angle. The discing splits up the root crowns, thus making, as it were, several smaller root crowns. This process will very much thicken and invigorate an old alfalfa field, adding very much to the fineness of the stem, and the value of the resultant crop.

ALFALFA FOR PASTURE

Under irrigation, it is very surprising what alfalfa will produce in the way of pasture. The writer instured 36 head of cows on 2 acres of land for five months. This pasture had a mixture of grasses; but alfalfa formed the principal part.

The 29 acres not only provided food for the 36 cows, but produced more than they could use, so that 12 acres were fenced off and 12 tons of hay cut and put in the barn. Besides producing the 12 tons of hay, the cows from this 29 acres produced $825.00 worth of butter. Of course, this was irrigated land; but it shows what a crop of this kind will do in the way of pasture when given a chance.

Alfalfa pasture, with a small grain supplement, will produce the cheapest and best hog meat grown.

It is also excellent for both sheep and horses. There is one time, however, when alfalfa pasture needs a little care, especially for dairy cows, and that is in the fall when the first serious frosts come.

If cows are turned on to the "frost-nipped" pasture, the first thing in the morning, there is occasional danger of bloat. However, if the dairyman will take the precaution to let his cows on such a morning, so that their stomachs are full when he goes to the pasture, they will then eat more slowly and of course not so much. In this way, the danger of bloat is practically overcome.

ALFALFA ON DRY LAND

Heretofore this discussion has been considering this valuable crop from the standpoint of the irrigationist. A few words might be added with respect to the adaptability of alfalfa for the so-called dry lands.

In some sections of Montana, where they have no more rain than they have here in south eastern Alberta, farmers are having fairly good success with alfalfa.

It generally takes a year to summer fallow or "summer till" the land to get it in shape for alfalfa seeding.

During the entire summer the land is kept perfectly free from weeds by tillage. After every shower the harrows are put on the soil to restore the dust mulch and thus, as it were, bottle up the rain that has fallen.

It is astonishing how much of the moisture that falls in a year may be preserved for the crop of the following year by constantly maintaining an earth mulch.

The harrows should be used almost constantly the next spring, up until you are ready to sow the alfalfa seed.

It might be well to both inoculate the seed and use inoculated earth on the land selected for the alfalfa.

Drag the inoculated earth and seed well into the seed bed, and again preserve the earth mulch until the crop comes up.

As soon as it is safe after the alfalfa comes up, and after each rain run over the surface with a special light harrow to keep the rain-packed surface of the ground broken up.

Usually on dry land only one crop is secured per year, varying from one ton to perhaps two tons per acre. The value of this crop on dry land, just like on irrigated land is not altogether in the crop of hay secured.

Equally as great value comes to the soil in addition of nitrogen, and when the roots are ploughed under, there is more benefit in the added humus.

This benefit keeps on increasing year by year, for with more humus the more moisture is held by the soil, and with more moisture we are able to produce larger crops. Thus the cycle of benefit to the land keeps on year after year.

It is certainly worth while to every farmer on dry land in Alberta to use every effort within his power to get this crop started on his land.

Thus, for the benefit of man, and the nourishment of his beasts, the greatest of all crops is alfalfa.

TOWN AND DISTRICT

The Town of Gleichen—please, Sunny Alberta in all her glory.

The new Catholic church is nearing completion.

Plans are being prepared for a large addition to the Gleichen hotel.

The irrigation farmers are now busy applying water to assure big crops.

Frank Stuart was up from Basano Tuesday visiting his former friends.

S. M. Dickenson and Rev. Castle left Monday to attend a meeting of synod at Calgary.

The Queenstown Farmers Union picnic on July 4th promises to be a huge success.

Thos. Gibson has sold his Blue Spring ranch and will reside for the future in Calgary.

F. H. Blackburn's new store is now almost completed and he is moving his stock into it.

Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Castle have returned from the W. A. convention held at Edmonton last week.

Rain is again needed, although a good shower north and south on Tuesday night did a lot of good.

Arjal & Son have put up a sign on their paint works on Fourth ave. that is attracting a great deal of attention.

Dr. Agnew, dentist of Medicine Hat, is in town at the Palace Hotel and will be here for the balance of the week.

E. L. McCallum's big contracting outfit passed through town Friday from the C. & R. canal work to the S. A. canal.

Tuesday Chris. Bastache shipped 38 head of cattle to Dawson city that weighed an average of 170 pounds each.

J. M. Telford states he will prosecute any person having any of his horses in their pasture or detaining them in any way.

Contractor Geo. Wakefield has started the erection of a neat residence for himself on his property on west end of Gleichen street.

J. M. Telford sold $15,000 worth of Percheron and Clyde horses on Monday to an eastern buyer and is now having them round up.

By instruction of the president a meeting of the Conservative Association will be held in Gleichen on Tuesday, June 21st, at 8 p.m.

J. W. Barr desires to state that he has withdrawn from the contest for a seat in the Council, and thanks all for the honor they would bestow upon him.

H. J. Richardson of Blooming Prairie writes The Call he is pleased with the result of an ad. in this paper as he learned his horse was within five miles of here.

A. B. Grace, chief engineer of the Southern Alberta Land Co., arrived in his auto Sunday from Lethbridge and in conversation stated that the crops in the vicinity of Gleichen were in much better condition than any he had seen on his trip across country.

Since printing the article from the Albertan on page 6 of this issue it is learned, that at the Boards of Trade convention the motion in respect to ranching industry recommends a period of ten years for the lease and then four years notice for cancellation.

On Thursday, 9th inst. Jacl. James left Gleichen for a trip to the Old Country. The Call wishes him a safe voyage, a pleasant time and a speedy return. So do others.

Ed. Urch, of The Hub, went to Vancouver on Sunday. He is after the most up-to-date alleys, tables, and shop fixings and furniture for his new establishment in Third avenue. Ed. means to have his premises fitted in top-bang style, and reckons he can get what he wants in that locality.
